the last couple of decades have witnessed a flourishing of arab american literature across multiple genres yet increased interest in this literature is ironically paralleled by a prevalent bias against arabs and muslims that portrays their long presence in the us as a recent and unwelcome phenomenon spanning the 1990s to the present carol fadda conrey takes in the sweep of literary and cultural texts by arab american writers in order to understand the ways in which their depictions of arab homelands whether actual or imagined play a crucial role in shaping cultural articulations of us citizenship and belonging by asserting themselves within a us framework while maintaining connections to their homelands arab americans contest the blanket representations of themselves as dictated by the us nation state deploying a multidisciplinary framework at the intersection of middle eastern studies us ethnic studies and diaspora studies fadda conrey argues for a transnational discourse that overturns the often rigid affiliations embedded in ethnic labels tracing the shifts in transnational perspectives from the founders of arab american literature like gibran kahlil gibran and ameen rihani to modern writers such as naomi shihab nye joseph geha randa jarrar and suheir hammad fadda conrey finds that contemporary arab american writers depict strong yet complex attachments to the us landscape she explores how the idea of home is negotiated between immigrant parents and subsequent generations alongside analyses of texts that work toward fostering more nuanced understandings of arab and muslim identities in the wake of post 9 11 anti arab sentiments this anthology provides fresh theorization of gendered dimensions of learning war and violence with a view to offering new insights on the impact of violence on women's learning and well-being. The collection is an important contribution to emerging interdisciplinary approaches to the role and effectiveness of civil society, especially women's NGOs working in war and post-conflict zones, and to the relationship between neoliberal global feminist projects and the re-emergence of colonial and imperial feminisms. This collection is also an exploration of the plausibility of current peace education strategies, augmenting the political and leadership role of women and their civic engagement. This collection is designed to create a space for conversation across disciplines on such issues as how to advance our conceptualization of gender-related education and conflict, how to provide empirically based case studies and transnational analyses that improve our understanding of the impact of war and violence on women's learning, and how to contribute to national and international policy analyses to improve education for women and girls through related policy reforms or humanitarian aid programs in post-war reconstruction efforts. This book was published as a special issue in the international journal of lifelong education.
